Ralph Thompson Brown

Lieutenant Colonel, U.S. Army

The late Ralph Thompson Brown, a native of Port Sulphur, La., entered LSU in 1933 on a working scholarship – caring for cattle in return for tuition, books, and a room in the cattle barn – and tutored students in chemistry to earn food and spending money. He earned a bachelor's degree in agricultural education in 1937 and a master's degree in horticulture in 1938 and was commissioned through LSU ROTC.

Brown entered active duty as a Second Lieutenant in 1942 and ended his military career as a Lieutenant Colonel in the Army Reserves in 1962. During World War II, he saw combat in the European, African, and Middle Eastern theaters. He was not a person to talk about his accomplishments, and his family did not understand the significance of his awards until after his death when they received copies of memoirs that recalled his actions – Ugly Duckling, History of the 94th Infantry Division in World War II, and Patton's Ghost Corps.

For his leadership and bravery, Brown received the Bronze Star, Distinguished Service Cross, Purple Heart, European-African-Middle Eastern Theater Service Medal, World War II Victory Medal, American Theater Service Medal, and Combat Infantryman Badge. He was one of eight recipients of the Distinguished Service Cross in the 94th Infantry, which consisted of more than 40,000 men.

After the war, Brown returned to his job with the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Cairo, Ga., and in 1949 accepted a position as superintendent – and the first employee – of the LSU Plaquemines Parish Experiment Station, now the LSU Citrus Research Station. He retired as full professor in 1978. Brown's research helped develop new varieties of the Satsuma, one being the La 4-40, which LSU named for him. Called the Brown Select, it is one of the mainstays of the Louisiana citrus industry.

Brown was active with the Plaquemines Parish Lions Club, serving in numerous offices and active with the club's eyeglass program and special needs camp. He was named Lion of the Year in 1966, 1974-75, and 1988-89.

LSU MILITARY ENDOWMENT CAMPAIGN

THE HERITAGE

Louisiana State University boasts a long, proud history of educating leaders for the state, the nation, and the world. Among its alumni are CEOs of business, industry, government, and education; celebrated artists and distinguished politicians; religious leaders and prominent philanthropists.

LSU alumni are also counted among chief military leaders in the United States armed forces and are some of the country's most highly decorated heroes – a proud reflection of the University's military heritage that began in 1860. A great many of these men and women were members of the LSU Corps of Cadets. It was here they became part of the “long purple line,” perpetuating LSU's military traditions.

THE TRIBUTE

The University wants to honor its military heroes and the men and women in the country's armed services – yesterday's, today's, and tomorrow's – and toward this end, has embarked upon a capital campaign to renovate and restore Memorial Tower to its original purpose by creating the LSU Military Museum.

The museum will be the repository for artifacts and memorabilia reflecting the University's rich military history and heritage. Its hallowed halls will offer a nostalgic stroll through University military history and will showcase the contributions of LSU men and women who have served and are serving their country in the armed forces.

The LSU Military Museum will augment and complement LSU's other military memorials: The LSU War Memorial – honoring students, faculty, staff, and alumni killed or reported missing in action during World War II and subsequent military conflicts; Memorial Oak Grove – remembering the 30 LSU students and alumni who lost their lives in World War I; and the T-33 Jet – a memorial for all LSU graduates who have died in the defense of our nation during the “jet age.”

LSU invites you to be part of restoring the glory of Memorial Tower. Prestigious naming opportunities for galleries and rooms and sponsorships of permanent and temporary exhibitions in the LSU Military Museum are available. For information, contact: The LSU Military Endowment Campaign, Memorial Tower, Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, LA 70803. Telephone: 225-578-0420; e-mail: cadets@lsu.edu or visit the Cadets of the Ole War Skule website at www.olewarskule.lsu.edu.
